Description:

This seminar offering provides a framework for personal conceptual design development.

Students will be challenged to think about one of the three words presented in the title of the seminar and produce a built object, and a descriptive narrative for their work. The work can be individual, or produced in a small group. Students who wish to pursue this seminar are encouraged to consider what they may produce before signing up for the seminar.

Any inquiries or questions can be directed to Prof. Taylor at mstaylor@illinois.edu